Establishment of the Education, Training, and Development Office at the University of Jordan Hospital: Health Knowledge Integration

Based on the vision of the University of Jordan, which recognizes knowledge as the cornerstone of progress and development in humanity today (Attachment 1), Jordan University Hospital - one of the administrative units of the university - has decided to establish the Education, Training, and Development Office. The aim is to ensure health knowledge integration, making it a global centre and reference for the development and delivery of health education and training. This is to ensure the acquisition of the necessary skills for the healthcare team to provide comprehensive medical care and preventive services according to the highest standards in education and healthcare.

The objectives of the office include training students from different medical colleges, developing healthcare professionals, and monitoring the training of residents through specialized scientific programs that are equivalent to international levels in the field. The focus is on enriching the practical skills required for the labour market, ensuring the excellence of graduates and enhancing their competitiveness in the local, regional, and global job market. The office also focuses on continuous health education programs, encompassing various healthcare sectors, to have the greatest impact on ensuring performance efficiency in the hospital, which directly reflects on the medical services provided to the community.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, there was a need to train all medical staff in the hospital, each according to their role, to deal with the pandemic quickly and effectively. Therefore, training was conducted remotely using the hospital's educational platform, ensuring the completion of training and passing examinations.

This training had a positive impact on improving healthcare services and effectively reducing the spread of infections. Over 1900 hospital employees were trained (Attachment 2), and the hospital's success story led to winning the Bronze Award in the Quality Harvest Award (Hasad al Jawdeh) presented by Healthcare Accreditation Council (HCAC).

As a result of this experience, it became necessary to restructure training and unify it under one umbrella to meet local and regional needs. Significant steps were taken in 2021 when training was restructured in August 2021 at the hospital through the establishment of the Education, Training, and Development Office, consisting of three departments: Continuous Medical Education, Continuous Nursing Education and Training, and Continuous Technical and Administrative Education, and Training.

Since its establishment, the office has been working diligently and continuously with all hospital departments and units through joint cooperation and multiple committees. The office has become a fundamental unit in the hospital, with modifications made to the hospital's organizational structure to include the office and its various departments. Policies and procedures related to the new scope of work of the office have been updated. Additionally, instructions and systems have been adopted for the Education, Training, and Development Office to ensure the effective achievement of its goals according to the highest professional standards and practices.

The office has obtained various accreditations for its training programs, such as accreditation for cardiopulmonary resuscitation training programs from the American Heart Association (AHA). The process of accreditation has also begun with the American College of Surgeons for the Advanced Trauma Life Support (ATLS) course. Moreover, many training programs have been accredited as professional development hours by the Jordan Medical Council, the Jordan Nursing Council, and the Higher Health Council.

❖ Vision:

To be a leader in education, training, and development at the local, regional, and global levels in the hospital sector.

❖ Mission:

This is achieved through organizing workshops, training courses, educational conferences, and seminars, with the aim of improving knowledge and developing the necessary skills to deliver high-quality healthcare.

• Promoting a culture of continuous learning:

The office seeks to promote a culture of continuous learning in the hospital, encouraging employees to continue developing themselves and improving their skills. This is done by providing educational resources, innovative teaching techniques, and promoting communication and collaboration among staff. The office also organizes various training programs based on the required skills and the assessment of training needs for employees.

• Developing leadership capabilities:

The office enhances the development of leadership capabilities for hospital staff by providing advanced training programs in management, leadership, and strategic planning. This aims to empower employees to assume leadership responsibilities and make important strategic decisions.

- Developing policies and procedures:

The office works on developing and updating policies and procedures within the hospital through active participation in relevant committees, ensuring harmonious workflow with the hospital's administrative team. This aims to ensure proper guidance and coordination in delivering healthcare and achieving the highest levels of quality and safety in accordance with healthcare standards and national and international accreditation requirements.

- Promoting a culture of scientific research and innovation:

The office works in continuous coordination with the Office of Scientific Research and Pharmaceutical Studies to support a culture of scientific research within the hospital. This is achieved through conducting a range of training programs that cover various topics related to scientific research, contributing to capacity building and excellence.
